Welcome Orgalim.

I am delighted to welcome you to Orgalim's 2022 summer General Assembly, hosted in Stockholm by our Swedish member Teknikföretagen.

In these times of deep geopolitical tensions, economic uncertainty and climate emergency, the role our industries play in Europe is more important than ever. This General Assembly is therefore a key moment, not only to set the agenda for Orgalim, but also to come together as leaders of Europe's technology industries to address the tremendous opportunities and the pressing challenges ahead.

After more than two years of pandemic we are excited to be meeting in person and for this occasion we have put together an exceptional agenda. Day one centres around our conference on the theme of Sustainability. Innovation. Competitiveness., for which I'm very pleased we will be joined by the Executive Vice President of the European Commission, Margrethe Vestager, and the Swedish Minister for Business, Industry and Innovation, Karl-Petter Thorwaldsson. Day two is dedicated to the formal items of the agenda (Policy Committees and Business Agenda). Teknikföretagen has also prepared a rich social programme, maximising the opportunities to exchange insights and connect with peers from across the continent.

Stockholm, known for its innovative spirit, is the perfect place to have these conversations, and my heartfelt thanks go to our host Teknikföretagen for their hospitality. I am sure this will be an inspiring and productive General Assembly and I look forward to sharing this time together with you all.

See you in Stockholm!

Malte Lohan, Director General,
Orgalim – Europe's Technology Industries

Welcome Teknikföretagen.

It is with both great honour and pride that Teknikföretagen and Sweden are hosting the Orgalim General Assembly in 2022.

The General Assembly is one important, step towards a Europe with a clear and vital industrial strategy. A strategy where the European industry is an integral force in the work to tackle many of the challenges that all European countries today are facing. Where technology makes the world a better place. Teknikföretagen and the Swedish industry are eager to be part of this.

We are looking forward to meeting our colleagues from all over Europe. While you are in Sweden, we will take the opportunity to present to you some exciting examples of industrial innovation. And last but not least, give you the opportunity to see some of the best sites in our capital, Stockholm.

Welcome to Sweden!

Klas Wählberg,
CEO, Teknikföretagen

Our Host

Teknikföretagen

Teknikföretagen (The Association of Swedish Engineering Industries) is an employers' organisation, and a force for innovation. We are present throughout Sweden and assist 4,200 engineering companies in labour law and industry issues, enabling them to focus on developing world-class goods and services. Engineering companies shape the future – and we help them to succeed.

Sweden and Europe are facing an age of unprecedented possibilities. New technology and new business models enable us to tackle the greatest challenges of our time. The Swedish engineering sector leads this development.

Sweden's future is consequently closely interwoven with the future of the engineering sector. Partly because Sweden's labour market and welfare system are dependent on the success of business, and partly as it is the solutions adopted by business which will also form Sweden's solutions. Consequently, our focus should be on promoting innovation and development in business - for technology that makes the world a better place.

About the Orgalim General Assembly.

For over 60 years, Orgalim has invited the leaders of Europe's technology industries to come together twice a year for the association's General Assembly. And over the decades, this event has become a valued platform for engaging on the latest European policy discussions, exchanging views and insights, and connecting with peers from across the continent. The General Assembly also serves an important statutory function: it is here where binding decisions are made on Orgalim's future priorities and actions for the year ahead.

When the event is hosted by an Orgalim member, it gives participants a unique opportunity to get to know more about the technology industries and innovation in that country, network with senior company representatives from the region, and explore the sights and culture of the host city.

This summer's General Assembly returns to Stockholm, named the most innovative region in the EU in 2017. Hosted by The Association of Swedish Engineering Industries, Teknikföretagen, it promises to be a truly exciting, important and memorable event, with a dynamic programme of events.

Epicenter

Epicenters are located in the heart of Stockholm, Oslo, Helsinki, and in Amsterdam. Members of the Epicenter community, who are entrepreneurs, fast growing digital companies and creative corporate initiatives, meet to collaborate, learn and grow their businesses.

The concept and development of Epicenter arises from the founding team's extensive knowledge in developing companies that are digitally innovative, and increasingly impactful. In order to achieve your growth and to make innovation happen faster, you need the right partners, tools and methods. This is where Epicenter comes in - founded in 2015 by entrepreneurs, for entrepreneurs.

S/S Motala Express boat

The S/S Motala Express, or "The Prisoner of Vättern" as she was also called because she was too large to go through the locks, was built in 1895 and was in her time a miracle of modern technology. She traveled the canals at the amazing speed of 14 knop and was luxuriously equipped with modern amenities such as water closets. In 2010, KG Knutsson liberated her from the prison of the locks, and made sure she was restored to her former glory. Motala Express is 36 metres long, holds 220 passengers, and still has her original steam engine.

Fjäderholmarna islands

Fjäderholmarna is a popular and highly-regarded tourist destination for both Stockholmers and tourists. Here you can enjoy archipelago food, crafts and culture during the summer. Many artisans have studios and stores in the center of the island. Fjäderholmarna also provides a nice taste of the archipelago for people who have only a short time to explore.

In the 19th century, Fjäderholmarna was of great importance during the brandy war between LO Smith and the new liquor monopoly in Stockholm. In the early 1920s, the Navy took over the islands to build an ammunition factory. The Royal Djurgårdens administration took over responsibility for Fjäderholmarna in 1982 and extensive renovation work has been carried out. Since 1995, Fjäderholmarna has been part of the Nationalstadsparken.

Discover Stockholm.

About Stockholm

Stockholm is known as one of the most inclusive and welcoming cities in the world. Its contemporary, urban appeal is balanced with centuries-old history and closeness to nature. As for the things to do in Stockholm, the list is endless.

Find out more: <https://visitsweden.com/where-to-go/middle-sweden/stockholm/>

Did you know?

- Ektorp is a sofa from IKEA. However, it's also a beautiful place close to Stockholm.
- Most of Stockholm's metro stations (about 100) have been artfully decorated with mosaics, sculptures and paintings.
- Stockholm, set on an archipelago of fourteen islands, is connected by 57 bridges.

- 13th century Storkyrkan Cathedral in the Old Town (Gamla Stan) is one of Stockholm's oldest buildings.
- The narrowest street in Gamla Stan (old town) is Mårten Trotzig's alley, which measures a tiny 35 inches (approx. 90 cm) at its narrowest point.

Stockholm – a hotspot for culture

Stockholm offers a smorgasbord of art and culture, from world-class museums and historically fascinating royal palaces to niche galleries and intimate artist houses.

Nationalmuseum showcases an impressive art collection spanning sculpture, painting and objects dating back to the 16th century. The imposing building, completed in 1866 and counting the Royal Palace as its neighbour, is a must-see in itself. Nevertheless, you'll want to venture inside to view the newly restored interior, which took five years to complete and was unveiled in 2018.

On a more intimate scale, Hallwylska museet (Hallwyl Museum) enjoys an equally central location in the former 19th century home of Count and Countess von Hallwyl. The museum is Countess Wilhelmina's legacy, a testament to her extensive and slightly eccentric collection of art, furnishings, jewellery and more.

The extraordinary maritime Vasa Museum is one of Stockholm's most popular attractions. Its crowning glory is the centuries-old ship The Vasa, which sank in 1628 and was recovered in 1961 – a dramatic and complex affair. It is the world's best preserved 17th-century ship and Scandinavia's most visited museum.

Don't miss ArkDes, the Swedish Centre for Architecture and Design, housed within the same complex as the eminent Museum of Modern Art (Moderna Museet).

Swedish innovations

Adjustable wrench

A staple in many toolboxes, the adjustable wrench or spanner, also popularly called 'Monkey wrench' or 'English key', often comes in very handy during do-it-yourself (DIY) projects. While the first iteration of this spanner was originally invented in 1842 by British engineer Richard Clyburn, today's adjustable wrench, the 'Swedish Key', is attributed to Johan Petter Johansson, a Swedish inventor who improved upon Clyburn's original concept and patented it in 1891.

Digital healthcare

Swedish startups are leading the way in the global development of digital healthcare by providing access to different forms of healthcare through mobile, artificial intelligence (AI) and other technologies. KRY is a doctor–patient app that lets doctors and psychologists meet patients via video. It has garnered a lot of attention – and some controversy. The company works with the publicly funded national health systems of the countries where it operates, which so far include Sweden, Norway and Spain.

Oat milk

The Nordic region offers great conditions for growing oats (read: it rains a lot), and Sweden is exploring different ways of using this healthy cereal. Swedish brand Oatly is perhaps best known for its non-dairy milk alternative. Oat milk was developed by the Lund University food scientist Rickard Öste, who founded Oatly in 1994. Since then, oat milk has become a staple at a range of supermarkets and coffee shops around the world. Swedish agricultural cooperative Lantmännen has also invested in research into oats. And it's not all about food products – a new research project is looking into creating furniture from oats!

The Karma app

We all know karma matters, right? Well, Karma can also transform food waste from a problem to an opportunity. Some Swedish entrepreneurs have launched an app called Karma. Via the app, supermarkets, restaurants and cafés can offer products that are about to expire at half price, instead of throwing them away. In just two years, Karma claims to have attracted 400,000 users around Sweden and in London. The aim is reduced food waste on a national level by 2030.

What to see in Stockholm

The old town

Gamla Stan, the Old Town, is one of the largest and best-preserved medieval city centres in Europe, and one of the foremost attractions in Stockholm. This is where Stockholm was founded in 1252.

Moderna Museet

Experience one of Europe's foremost collections of art from the twentieth century to today, featuring works by artists including Picasso, Dali, Derkert, and Matisse. Moderna Museet is located on Skeppsholmen island, a setting of natural beauty. The building was designed by Spanish architect Rafael Moneo. Moderna takes an admission charge for visiting and temporary exhibitions but entry to the Moderna Museet Collection is free.

Address: Exercisplan 4, 111 49 Stockholm

Fotografiska

Fotografiska is one of the world's largest gathering places for modern photography and presents four unique main exhibitions and about 20 smaller exhibitions annually. In addition to the large exhibition area, there is a book and souvenir shop, a restaurant and a photo gallery. From the café on the top floor you can enjoy both good coffee and one of Stockholm's absolute best panoramic views.

Address: Stadsgårdshamnen 22, 116 45 Stockholm

Royal Djurgården

Djugården is beloved by both Stockhomers and visitors - a tranquil oasis in the middle of Stockholm. The island has been a possession of the crown since the 15th century. Like no other place in Stockholm it collects many of the city's most famous museums and cultural attractions (the Vasa Museum, Gröna Lund, the Abba museum and Skansen to name a few) with green nature, parks, and family-friendly activities. Djurgården can be reached by bus, tram or ferry from central Stockholm. Though on a beautiful summer day a walk along Strandvägen, from The Royal Dramatic Theatre to Djurgårdsbron, is highly recommended.

Skansen

Skansen is a favorite both among Stockholmers and visitors passing through. This is the oldest open-air museum in the world and also the Stockholm zoo, with animals native to Scandinavia. Skansen is beautifully located on Royal Djurgården and offers spectacular views over all of Stockholm. This is also a Sweden in miniature.

Address: Djurgårdsslätten 49-51, Stockholm

ABBA The Museum

ABBA The Museum is more than just a museum. Sure, the permanent exhibition is chock full of ABBA memorabilia like stage outfits, instruments, gold records, awards and much more. But it's also an interactive experience that invites you to sing, dance, mix music and try out virtual stage outfits.

Address: Djurgårdsvägen 68, Stockholm

Vasa Museum

Vasa is the world's only preserved 16th-century ship and a unique art treasure. The ship consists of more than 95% of original parts and is decorated with hundreds of carved sculptures. The 69-metre-long Regal ship Vasa sank during its maiden voyage in the middle of Stockholm in 1628 and was salvaged 333 years later, in 1961. For almost half a century the ship has been slowly and carefully restored to near original glory. The three masts on the roof outside the custom-built museum show the height of the ship's original masts. The Vasa Museum is today Scandinavia's most visited museum with over a million visitors annually.

Address: Galärvarvsvägen 14, Stockholm

Fjällgatan/The South of Stockholm

Thanks to Stockholm being built on 14 islands and with barely any high-rise buildings, the city has a unique landscape. It's mostly church spires that pierce through the otherwise almost unobstructed skyline.

Kungsträdgården

Kungsträdgården, also known as Kungsan, is a park on Norrmalm in Stockholm. Kungsan is one of the oldest preserved public parks in Stockholm. In the spring, cherry trees bloom in the park's northern part. A visit during the cherry blossom season in the spring has become a tradition for many Stockholmers and visitors to the city. During the summer season, the park is well attended and the events succeed each other. In the wintertime, the ice skating rink around Karl XIII's statue is a popular excursion destination for both skiers and crowds.

In the park you can also visit the Volvo showroom and enjoy a "Swedish Fika".

Shopping

Åhléns

Close to Stockholm Central station you'll find Åhléns City. Åhléns is Sweden's largest department store, with competitive prices for clothing, design, beauty and much more. At Åhléns you'll find pretty much everything.

Address: Klarabergsgatan 50, Stockholm

Biblioteksgatan

Biblioteksgatan has long been one of Stockholm's and Sweden's most exclusive shopping streets. Here in the area you will find many international brand stores. A cosy pedestrian street runs from Norrmalmstorg to Stureplan. At Biblioteksgatan you'll find luxury brands, good restaurants and coffeeshops, and some of Sweden's most popular brands like Acne, Filippa K and COS.

NK

The gates to the department store on Hamngatan in Stockholm were opened in 1915. Since then, everything from iconic personalities to exclusive launches has undergone revision. No matter what happens at NK, the department store is known to be always one step ahead.

Address: Hamngatan 18-20, Stockholm

Svenskt Tenn

Svenskt Tenn is an interior design company with a shop, interior design studio and tea room on Strandvägen in Stockholm as well as a shop on the web. The company was founded in 1924 by Estrid Ericson who was a drawing teacher and tin artist from Hjo. Swedish Tenn originally sold only tin items, but in 1930 the range was expanded to include an interior design department. The company has been a royal court supplier since 1928 and is owned by the Kjell and Märta Beijer Foundation, which promotes scientific research and culture.

Address: Strandvägen 5, Stockholm

Mood Stockholm

Mood is a new and stylish mall with a focus on fashion and design. In the galleria you'll find boutiques like Rodebjer and Posh Living along with famous international brands recently established in Sweden, including Ralph Lauren and Club Monaco.

When you're ready for a shopping break you can enjoy a delicious meal in one of the popular restaurants (Boqueria, Vigårda, E.A.T) or enjoy the modern art that adorns the walls.

Mood Stockholm is on Regeringsgatan on the block that connects the Hamngatan and Bibliotekstan shopping districts.

Address: Regeringsgatan 48, Stockholm

Food

Traditional Swedish food

Sweden's differing North and South delicacies sandwich together in the country's capital to offer diners an exhibition of delights. Explore the intricacies of a not-so-typical meat and potatoes dinner washed down with malty ale, or learn about the passed-down traditions of curing and smoking salted and dill-rubbed fish. Your ultimate dining adventure awaits with these 10 items you must try in Stockholm.

Meatballs

The Swedish meatball, or Kottbullar, populates overcrowded IKEA snack bars, children's school lunch plates and restaurants of every calibre. The meatball rolled across the globe over a period of centuries, establishing comfortable popularity throughout Europe, but it found a special place in Nordic countries. In Sweden, fan-favourite meatballs lounge in pools of brown gravy next to complementary sides like mashed potato, pickles and lingonberries.

Crayfish

The song of cracking crustacean shells hangs in Stockholm's summer air. Warm weather means crayfish parties thick with laughter and seafood for Swedes. Wear festive paper hats and plastic bibs while slurping out the cold white meat of the salty summer delicacy. The lean meat not only makes a nutritious meal, but also acts as a glue that brings family and friends together during the balmy summer months.

Toast Skagen

Shellfish isn't just a summer phenomenon. This starter consists of a mixture of prawns, mayo, dill and lemon that sits on a piece of crunchy bread, all topped with an elegant dome of fish roe. Try this cold, fishy appetizer for a taste of Sweden's love for all things ocean.

Herring

Herring in many forms (pickled / fried / fermented) has long been the backbone of fish cookery in Sweden. Many towns, especially on the west coast, only survived because of the herring fishing industry.

Pickled herring plays a central role to many Swedish festivals forming, for instance, the first course of a julbord (Christmas buffet) and is essential when celebrating Swedish Midsummer accompanied by the season's first new potatoes. The herring are first salted and then pickled in a mixture of vinegar, water, sugar and spices. Every Swedish chef has their own favourite mixture and many chefs delight in inventing new recipes every year!

Surströmming (fermented Baltic herring) is one of Sweden's most infamous products and is especially popular in northern Sweden.

Surströmming is not for the faint of heart. This infamous canned, fermented herring has one of the most putrid smells in the world. In fact, some airlines even prohibit passengers from carrying surströmming onto aircrafts based on claims that the pressurised cans are subject to explosion. When opened, surströmming releases a strong and sometimes overwhelming odour, so it is usually eaten outside. Surströmming are normally eaten at the end of August.

Gravad lax

For salmon lovers, the dill cured salmon in Sweden is just spectacular and you should eat it with every opportunity you have.

Raggmunk

Raggmunk are pancakes made from grated or ground potato, flour, and egg, seasoned with onions and garlic, and served with thick cuts of bacon and lingonberry preserve.

It remains one of the most popular local dishes because of its savoury balance between sweetness from the lingonberries, buttery saltiness from the raggmunk pancakes, and fatty grease from the bacon.

Knäckebröd: Crisp Bread

The crisp bread, often known as knäckebröd in Swedish, was once considered a poor man's food, but nevertheless, it has been a popular bread baked in Sweden over the last 500 years. The bread is also one of the most common sides served together with a main course dish. While the bread can be topped with basics like cheese and ham, most Swedes prefer to eat it with delicious caviar. This is an option to be served on the breakfast table.

Lingonberry

These charming red berries come with almost everything on Stockholm's menus. The popular fruit tastes and looks like a cranberry and sprouts throughout Scandinavia. Swedes usually prefer lingonberries in jam, and they combine it with foods like meatballs, steak, potatoes and porridge.

Cinnamon buns

Before heading to Gamla Stan or the ABBA museum, grab a quick coffee and cinnamon bun or roll, called Kanelbullar, for the road. These buns originate from Sweden and present a wholesome breakfast or afternoon snack for caffeine fanatics.

Princess cake

Prinsesstårta slices make Swedish locals swell with excitement at celebrations. The first recipe appeared in 1948 and was well received by the Swedish princesses of the time, giving the confection its modern-day name.

Bakers layer sponge cake, cream and berries and shroud them in a blanket of bright green marzipan to make this cherished dessert.

Save your clean-eating week for Stockholm

The vegan offerings in this city are unrivalled. You can order your coffee with oat, almond or soy milk in most cafes, get delicious vegan ice cream in stores or at Stikki Nikki, or try vegan pulled pork (called oomph) in Max Burger, Vigårda and many other burger establishments.

Lunch

Lunch starts early in Sweden and is the biggest meal of the day. Restaurants typically offer buffet lunches for a fixed price and start serving at noon sharp. Oh, and there won't normally be any desserts on the table, but you can save your sweet tooth for later (see fika)!

The flavours of fika

'Fika' is the Swedish coffee and cake ritual that means that the best cafes in the city will be full to the brim in the afternoons, especially at weekends. The traditional fika is with a cinnamon bun, but some cafes do their own variations:

the rhubarb crumble buns at Fabrique, or the pistachio and blackcurrant version at Il Caffe are some favourites. It's a crowded time, but well worth pushing in.

Restaurants

Sturehof

Sturehof is a seafood and shellfish restaurant located on the Stureplan in central Stockholm, Sweden. The origins of the restaurant are generally traced back to 1897, when Ernst Marcus opened a beer bar called Malta in the building.

Address: Stureplan 2, Stockholm

Riche

For over a hundred years, the dining rooms and bars at Riche have been a social hub for both the power and cultural elite, young hippies, old foxes and ordinary people. Riche is located at Birger Jarlsgatan 4 in Stockholm. The restaurant got its name as early as 1893 when the property was erected.

Address: Birger Jarlsgatan 2, Stockholm

Hallwylska

Hallwylska restaurant and bar may be one of the most beautiful inner courtyards in Stockholm. This is the place for dinner and drinks or just some refreshments after a visit to the Hallwyl Museum – or even lunch with a palace view. The food is created by award-winning chef Jonas Lundgren. Open during summer months only.

Address: Hamngatan 4, Stockholm

Meatballs for the people

Meatballs for the People is a restaurant in the south of Stockholm “Södermalm” that only serves meatballs. Meatballs serves 14 different varieties of organic meatballs ranging from rooster, to moose ox, pig, salmon and vegetable.

All the meatballs are handmade from organic, locally sourced produce . If you're eager to try Swedish food, you'll have to go here.
